

Attention Walmart Shoppers: Most American Voters have the IQ of a child!

By Dan Savige

Are you a pusillanimous pussy footer?

If you could read that sentence, know what it means, and know the historical significance of that statement, then you are part of only 9% of the people who vote.

If you passed that test then you probably don't shop at Walmart twice a week.

If you shop at Walmart twice a week then YOU are going to decide who the next President of the United States will be.

If you even care, the tiniest bit about the election process, you need to go spend the afternoon at a Walmart. You do not understand what is going to happen in 2016 unless you do.

So the Obama Administration tried to kill off all of the old vets with the VA mismanagement but they didn't get them all. Plenty of pissed off vets will be voting in 2016.

They thought that all the "old white people" would be dead by now but a bunch of them got on Obamacare and will now make it for one more national election.

As of today, 100 million Americans can't find a job and are out of work. No matter how much the DNC orders the press not to disclose this fact, they exist. In what fantasy-land do you think they are not going to the polls? Oh, yah, and most of them shop at Walmart.

The Millennials, the savvy kids that were hoped to be the next-generation, turn out to be just as stupid as we all thought and are all living with their parents. They may not be the great hope some had hoped for. They may be turning out to be extra-stupid. Even worse than the 80's!

So the stable group of Walmart people are coming in for the big haul. They got flab, attitude and Votes!

If you really won't take a dutiful social responsibility trip to Walmart to try to understand, then, at least go to Youtube and watch some of the: "People of Walmart" videos.

A good chunk of the people on the internet live in small, higher income, central regions of big cities and have enough money, from their jobs, to buy ipads and read Buzzfeed all day. Hillary, and some other candidates hired these children to tell them how to be cool on the internet. They are addressing a voting population, though, that may have little effect on the final vote. You can have cool kids on your campaign staff, with tons of buzzwords, for every meeting, but if they don't buy Little Debbie cakes by the case, from Walmart, they are the wrong people.

If you are reading Buzzfeed, you are young, inexperienced, have a short attention span and are not a Walmart Shopper.

The fast talking cool campaign advisors may have pitched a big game, but they may be selling some candidates fluff. Nobody trusts the internet anymore. Most of America still don't use it. The Obama trick of giving the Walmart people "free" internet over their Obamaphone and then feeding the free internet with Obama-controlled Google is totally blocked by the GOP, now.

The Google-will-take-over-the-election issue is being counter-measured by a massive, well financed GOP DNS re-triggering technology and new keywording systems. The Google search engine-rigging trick may not work at all this time, ie: Donald Trump.

Scientists with real, actual computers, have analyzed the voters for over two decades. They can now prove that most voters are idiots. This is not to say that most American's are idiots. There are over 300 Million Americans. Only about 65 million Americans decide who will be President. The scientists say, most of that 65 million are "idiots".

Campaign managers focus on the idiots. They are easy to win. Sure, you smart ones might think some of the candidates antics are ridiculous. They are, but they don't care about you. You smart ones don't count. There are not enough of you to wrap up an election.

Rock On Walmart Voters!